

1.2.1 Vocabulary

propaganda	A message that is spread to advance an idea or cause, usually religious or political in nature.
subject matter	What something is about.
Realism	A 19th-century movement to depict subjects as they appear in everyday life without enhancing or altering them for artistic purposes.
Photorealism	An art movement started in the United States in the 1960s that is based on making a painting from one or more photographs.